What is Online Learning?

Through the use of available information technology applications, PIMS has expanded its Correspondence mode of learning Online to reach as many interested students as possible. Intereaction between instructors and students will be through computers and mobile phones. Innovative use of such technology means students can study where ever they are (i.e. while in the village; while at home; while on holidays; or while working in the office). No postage and handling. No long delays in responses.

Target Group

The primary focus of PIMS particularly has been towards providing an alternative continuing education pathway to disadvantaged school leavers (Grade 10 and 12) who are pushed out of the mainstream education system, and also to the working class. By enrolling at PIMS many students are provided with a second and alternative opportunity to complete Grade 11 and 12 equivalent studies and be in a position where they, like others, are eligible to apply to universities, colleges or places of employment.

How to Apply

Students can apply directly on the PIMS Website using the electronic application form available. After all necessary details are filled and submitted, the student will immediately receive an acknowledgement notice. The institution will then send an acceptance letter via email. After this, the student can make the necessary fee payments.

File Downloads/ Uploads

Course modules and assignments are immediately available for download to registered students. An assignment due date schedule is also sent to students. Completed assignments can easily be uploaded on the PIMS website. Other files such as assignment solutions and old exam papers are also available for study purposes.
